Updates - Ministry of Communication and Informatics' Press Release on Simplification of Certification Process for Telecommunication Equipment of Cellular Telephones, Handheld Computers, and Computer Tablets

The Ministry of Communication and Informatics ("MOCI") just announced on its website that the Minister has approved a regulation on the certification of cellular telephones, handheld computers, and computer tablets (though the MOCI has not released an official copy of the regulation in its website). To speed up the certification of cellular telephones, handheld computers, and computer tablets, the MOCI will implement a declaration of conformity scheme (being a written statement from the relevant manufacturer to demonstrate that its product has fulfilled the EU requirements) in certification applications. The certification application can be submitted by trademark holders through <https://sertifikasi.postel.go.id>. The complete certification application procedures can be seen at the MOCI's website.
